Entrepreneurs compete for the top prize at The 2011 UH Business Plan Competition
Welcome to the Spring 2011 issue of Shidler Business. It has been an action-packed semester and we are very proud to share all of our accomplishments with you in the following pages.

Most recently, the College received re-accreditation from AACSB International, the world’s leading accrediting institution for business schools. This is the standard by which all business schools strive for and we thank all of our stakeholders for helping us to reach our goals.

We hosted several fascinating guest speakers in recent months including America Online Co-founder and former AOL Time Warner Chair Steve Case who drew over 600 at the Kīpapa i ke Ala Lecture. In a rare interview, Case shares his insights and advice to budding entrepreneurs in our feature story on page 4. This summer, stay tuned for more information on lectures by world-renowned entrepreneurs and business professionals such as real estate mogul Sam Zell, Hong Kong venture capitalist Danny Lui and philanthropist Bernard Osher.

Our alumni continue to be one of our greatest assets. Their contributions of time, resources and knowledge have played a major role in the success of our students and programs. For instance, this May countless alumni volunteered to mentor students at Business Night’s 50th Anniversary event. In this issue, we explore the history of this popular gathering and the impact it has had on students’ careers through the decades. Also, in our alumni section, we will introduce you to a few stellar Shidler graduates through our featured profiles and stories.

Finally, mahalo to the members of the Shidler Alumni Association for their steadfast commitment. In March, the organization fulfilled its $200,000 pledge to establish an endowed scholarship which will benefit students in perpetuity. The gift was matched by Shidler matching funds for a total endowment of $400,000. We encourage you to become a part of this great group of business professionals and learn more about the countless projects that this organization has coordinated benefiting alumni, students and the business community.

It is truly a fun time to be a part of the Shidler ‘ohana. Thanks for sharing in our success. As always, please keep in touch as we welcome your comments and feedback.

Sincerely,

V. Vance Roley

A CONVERSATION WITH STEVE CASE

by Krystal Lee

As co-founder of America Online Inc. and later, chairman of AOL Time Warner, STEVE CASE played an essential role in building the world’s largest Internet company, making the service a vital part of everyday life. Today, he is chairman and CEO of Revolution, a company he launched that seeks to change the world by the investments it makes in people and ideas.
Before speaking at the Kīpapa i ke Ala Lecture this past November, Steve Case sat alongside his wife Jean for an exclusive interview with the Pacific Asian Center for Entrepreneurship (PACE). He shared his perspectives on entrepreneurship and offered some words of advice to students pursuing their own businesses.

Case believes that the key ingredients of a successful entrepreneur are the “three P’s”— passion, perseverance and people. Entrepreneurs need to have PASSION in their idea. “Twenty-five years ago, most people didn’t have personal computers. Of those people [that did], less than one percent were connected and the idea of the Internet was a foreign concept. We were passionate in the idea that someday we would live in a world where everybody would be connected.”

PERSEVERANCE was critical in the success of AOL. “People didn’t see why average consumers would ever be interested in email and e-commerce,” he said. “It took a decade before the company gained significant traction.”

Lastly is the ability to recruit and motivate a team of PEOPLE to transform an idea into reality. “Nothing of significance can be done by one person on their own,” he said.

Case also emphasized the difference between confidence and arrogance in entrepreneurs. Entrepreneurs often claim that they essentially have no competition. “That either means it’s not a good idea or they’re not telling the truth,” he explained. “The business world is extremely competitive. It is important to acknowledge that there are many forces at work keeping you from being successful,” he said. “An understanding and humility about that is important.”

To student entrepreneurs, Case says, “Don’t give up. Particularly in entrepreneurship, people are generally more focused on why something is going to fail [rather] than why something is going to succeed. If you’re passionate about an idea, you should check yourself and make sure this is really an idea worth fighting for. But if you really believe in the idea, don’t give up. Even if others doubt its success or when the initial marketplace is not what you like. Believe in yourself, believe in your idea and fight to bring it to life.”

A political science major, Case believes that a university degree is not required to be a successful entrepreneur; however, it does provide a good foundation. “It gives you a basic set of skills and a broad understanding that are increasingly useful in a complicated global world,” he said.

He added that a university setting provides valuable experiences that allows students to expand their network and learn from mentors. “In the case of UH, getting me to come back to speak or getting entrepreneurs working with students who are developing an idea—it’s not just what happens in the classroom but how you connect with those people in the community that is critically important.”

To Case, the future of the Internet is in its ubiquitous access and the marriage of mobility and location technology. “Now, through a proliferation of mobile devices and other devices, people have access all the time. This is changing content, commerce and community,” he said. Case, who has at least 100 apps on his phone, uses his email and Twitter applications the most. He also uses Pandora as well as content driven apps such as the Wall Street Journal.

Last July, Case was named co-chair of the National Advisory Council on Innovation and Entrepreneurship. He is excited for the opportunity to find ways to commercialize the tens of billions of U.S. dollars that are invested in research in universities. In particular, he will look for ways to drive collaboration across competitive educational institutions to move ideas from the lab to the marketplace.

Also, Case and his wife Jean devote much of their time to philanthropic endeavors through the Case Foundation. Over the years, the couple has supported successful initiatives that have resulted in hundreds of millions of dollars through citizen-led philanthropy.
Business Night started 50 years ago in 1961, when Assistant Dean Edwin Pendleton and a group of business students came up with a unique way to bring students and professionals together. What seems like a no-brainer today, was unheard of during the late ‘50s and early ‘60s. Fortunately, it was the combination of Hawai’i’s statehood and a growing downtown business community, and a strong business college that turned a simple idea into a winning recipe for success.

With the help of the Hawaii Chamber of Commerce, Business Week was created. The weeklong series of events included: Organization Day, where students gave presentations about their business clubs; seminars; tours of the College; and a coffee hour with professionals. The week culminated with Business Night—a special evening of student awards, mentoring, dancing and networking.

Although the first Business Night was small, it had a big impact. More graduates were being recruited and hired, the College’s relationship with the business community grew stronger, and more companies offered support to students, faculty and the College.

It’s amazing how an “aha moment” can turn a simple concept of connecting students with business professionals into one of the most recognized events in Hawai’i’s business community.
In 1966, Business Week was shortened to three days. It wasn’t until 1969 that the daytime events were eliminated except for Business Night. In the 2000s, Business Night shortened its program by removing the Hall of Honor Awards portion of its program. It was a strategic move that allowed the event to focus entirely on students. The Hall of Honor Awards was given its own event to highlight the achievements of the College’s alumni.

Although Business Night has evolved over the decades, the original concept of matching students with business professionals has not wavered. A large portion of the Business Night program is focused on mentoring so students and professionals can network and learn from one another.

In addition, the event has been commended for providing students with hands-on experience in managing a major event. It also recognizes the College’s top students in front of their peers and the business community.

Today’s Business Night has become a local institution in itself. It is the one night that students can build on their career connections by meeting professionals across all business sectors. It marks an important milestone in the College’s history of connecting with Hawai’i’s business community.

In recognition of Business Night’s 50th anniversary, we asked those that were on the frontline of planning Business Night, to share with us how this event impacted their personal goals and professional careers.

William S. Richardson School of Law, Events Assistant
Business Night Director 2010

“My experiences planning events like Business Night have helped me in several ways. It helped me to develop professional skills in working with others as well as interacting with business professionals. It also helped me in getting my current position as an event coordinator at the UH Mānoa Richardson School of Law. Being the director of Business Night has taught me how to use my abilities and professionalism in representing an educational institution.”

“My most impressionable memories of overseeing Business Night are memories of students who worked hard and who were motivated to carry on and improve upon the traditions of past Business Nights. Those long hours of rehearsing speeches and reviewing every detail of the program was truly an achievement. It made me so proud that the students had accomplished so much and I knew they would succeed in other endeavors.”

JUDY (MORITA) LEE, ESQ.
Goodsill Anderson Quinn & Stifel
Business Night Co-Chair 1985

“Business Night had a positive impact on my professional career. As a co-chair of the event with Carol (Onomoto) Imai, I had the opportunity to speak to a room filled with esteemed professors and fellow students. It was the first time that I spoke in front of such a large group! Since that night, I have presented multiple seminars to both small and large groups in connection with my practice as a trusts and estates attorney. Speaking at Business Night provided me with the confidence to pursue other endeavors.”

"Business Night was such an important part of my UH experience. It was a lot of hard work, but yet very rewarding. What I’ll always remember about Business Night was my committee’s spirit of teamwork and unparalleled commitment. It’s that amazing virtue of teamwork and commitment that I have always instilled in my professional career. I’ll always remember the amazing and talented people that I had the opportunity to collaborate with on this project, including Dean David McClain, Advisor Marsha Anderson, and Business Night mentor Tu Ha. The friendships that I developed with my wonderful committee are something that I’ll cherish forever.

“I remember Business Night as being one of the first opportunities we had as students in the College to step out into the real world and interact with professionals in the fields we were preparing to make careers in. It was one of many experiences the College provided us beyond the classroom that helped us eventually compete and find success in business.”

Flexibility, and to think outside-of-the-box are some of the things that I’ve gained through being a chairperson of Business Night as well as teamwork and the acumen to choose the right people to be on your team. That is something that has helped me in my professional career. Currently, I’m in charge of recruiting for my company, so having the insight to pick the right talent that will add value to the organization and propel growth for years to come is an essential function of my job.”

I am now. The day of the event was so busy that it was like a blur to me. But, I do remember feeling a great sense of accomplishment when the event was coming to an end. Seeing the result of all the hard work that my team and I put in months prior to the event definitely made me proud.”

“Being the executive director of Business Night was the most challenging, yet rewarding experience I’ve had at the College. The networking experience and business connections I made surely helped start up my career, and the teamwork and leadership skills I gained helped me get to where I am now. “I remember vividly my experience at Business Night. It was so intimidating to be the emcee of such a prominent function and all I could think of was that if I messed up, then no one in this town would ever hire me! Needless to say, all of the professionals were extremely supportive, many of them giving me pats on my back for a job well done. Business Night was such a valuable experience to me as a young student as one of the few venues to connect with the professional business community in Hawai’i and to start networking within the business industry. I commend the University and its dedicated students for continuing to contribute to Hawai’i’s business community.”

PloXimer Materials is now on its way to launching its plan for a patent pending chromate-free coating to protect aluminum called SiloXel™. The coating is a silicone-based polymer that is completely clear, allowing customers to display a bare metal look. In addition to the $10,000 cash prize sponsored by the Shidler College, the team was awarded a $17,500 in-kind prize package.

Congratulations to team members Douglas Cullison, Lloyd Hihara, Lena Mobin, David Schmidt and Atul Tiwari.

Renewable Water Technologies placed second with its plan to develop and commercialize world class, low-cost, sustainable desalination technologies. Riley McGivern, Weilin Qu, Ryan Sato and Jeremy Uota received a $5,000 cash prize sponsored by The Ulupono Initiative and an $11,000 in-kind prize package. The team also won the coveted $5,000 Social Entrepreneurship Award sponsored by The Ulupono Initiative.

Third place went to inFLOWmation, a product development company that is creating, patenting, and marketing wind anemometers and complementary devices/products for distribution worldwide. Kuenzang Dorji, Firaas Hakim, Jenna Nishita and Josiah Nishita received a $2,500 cash prize sponsored by HiBEAM and a $4,000 in-kind prize package.

The Shidler College also awarded a prize to the top scoring undergraduate team. Body Flight Hawaii comprised of team members Melissa Benz-Exstromm, Frank Hinshaw and Miguel Lopez, developed a plan for a single vertical windtunnel facility that will have the ability to provide entertainment and recreation services to large market segments on Oahu.

On November 1, 2010, approximately 210 scholarship donors and student recipients gathered at the Kahala Hotel and Resort to attend Shidler’s annual Scholarship Luncheon. The event recognized donors for their support of students and their commitment to education. Finance Factors Chairman and Secretary Daniel B.T. Lau (BA ’41) addressed the crowd as the keynote speaker. Lau shared entertaining stories from his career and offered invaluable advice to students. Third-year senior Mason Choy and Part-Time MBA student Ryan Sato also shared a few words about the impact that their scholarships have had on their student careers and personal lives.

The College awarded over $1 million in scholarships to 550 business students for the 2010-2011 academic year. Since 2005, the number of scholarships awarded to Shidler students has increased by 340%.

“We are extremely grateful to our alumni and the business community for establishing scholarships and contributing to existing scholarship funds,” commented Dean Vance Roley. “We see this as an investment into our economic future.”

HICSS-44 draws top academics and researchers to Hawai’i

Held January 4-7, 2011 at the Grand Hyatt Kauai Resort & Spa, this year’s Hawaii International Conference on System Sciences attracted over 750 of the world’s top academics, researchers, and practitioners in computer science and information technology to Hawai’i. The 44th annual event has built a name as the premier forum for the interchange of ideas in the Information Systems industry. The agenda is designed to facilitate informal interaction and the lively exchange of ideas, techniques and applications among conference attendees.

The four-day conference featured paper presentations, symposia, workshops, and tutorials. There were also 10 tracks and 93 minitracks covering a wide variety of topics including cloud computing, social issues for information systems, and social networking and communities. Other highlights included a keynote address by Cynthia Breazeal, director of the Personal Robots Group for MIT, and a Distinguished Lecture by Larry Smarr, director of the California Institute for Telecommunications and Information Technology. More than 40 countries from around the world were represented at HICSS-44.

For more highlights including Best Paper winners for each track, visit the HICSS website at www.hicss.hawaii.edu or email hicss@hawaii.edu.

Finance students place second in regional business CFA competition

Competing against the nation’s top business schools, a team made up of four undergraduate finance students from the UH Shidler College of Business stunned judges with an exceptional and confident presentation earning them second place at the regional Certified Financial Analyst (CFA) Global Investment Research Challenge in San Francisco in March.

• 1st place - Wharton (Executive MBA Team)
• 2nd place - Shidler (Undergraduate Finance Team)
• 3rd place - Haas (Graduate MBA Team)

According to Faculty Advisor Ben Bystrom, the UH team was not only the top undergraduate team in the competition but also competed successfully against MBA teams from other well-known business schools. “The margin separating the Wharton Executive MBA team and the Shidler team for the top position was razor thin.”

“The competition was a great experience in allowing us to present in front of real portfolio managers and investors,” said Josh Gillman. “It also gave us an opportunity to see what questions and concerns actual professionals would have.”

Jonathan Fung added, “The Global Investment Research Challenge allowed me to apply my theoretical background in finance. It was definitely intimidating, but also very rewarding.”

The team was sponsored by the CFA Hawaii Chapter.

In another competition, the same team placed third out of 26 teams at the Simon Fraser University Finance International Case Competition in Vancouver, Canada in November. The Case Competition is one of the largest undergraduate finance competitions in the world attracting the brightest business students from Asia, North America and Europe.

Adama Materials wins Venture Capital Deal of the Year award

Congratulations to Adama Materials (formerly known as NanoGreen Inc.), the 2008 UH Business Plan Competition winners, for receiving the Hawaii Venture Capital Association’s “Venture Capital Deal of the Year” award for 2010. The award is given to local companies that have raised notable amounts of investment capital in the previous year. The other two award winners for 2010 were Pacific Biodiesel and Innovasc.

Adama Materials is a developer of nanotechnology-based advanced materials. On September 29, 2010, the company announced that it had completed a $4.75 million Series A equity financing led by Artiman Ventures, along with Startup Capital Ventures, the company’s founders, and a group of Hawai‘i-based angel investors.

In its second year of eligibility, the Full-Time MBA program has been named among the nation’s best according to U.S. News and World Report’s annual list of Best Graduate Schools. In the overall rankings, the College was placed 107 out of the 437 accredited business schools considered. In the Part-Time MBA rankings, Shidler was 105 on the list along with the University of Massachusetts–Boston and Lehigh University.

The overall MBA ranking was based on student selectivity and quality of program. The Part-Time MBA ranking was based on a fall 2010 peer assessment survey of business school deans and MBA program directors.

Last year, the College’s undergraduate program was ranked 135 on U.S. News’ list of best undergraduate business programs. More than 600 accredited schools nationwide were considered. The undergraduate program was also ranked 15th in U.S. News’ International Business specialty area.

MBA student among nation’s top performers on CPA exam

Maria Goto

In January, Full-Time MBA student Maria Goto was presented with the Elijah Watt Sells Award by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants for her outstanding performance on the 2009 Uniform CPA Examination. This prestigious national award is presented annually to individuals who have obtained the ten highest cumulative scores on all four sections of the CPA exam. To be eligible, one must have completed the test during the previous year and have passed each section on their first attempt. Over 93,000 individuals took the exam in 2009.

Goto earned her undergraduate degree in accounting from the University of Washington. Prior to entering Shidler’s MBA program in 2009, she worked as an accountant with Sonoda & Isara LLP. After graduating in spring 2011, Goto will start her new job as an auditor with N&K CPAs.

MBAs chair marketing and fundraising efforts for solar decathlon competition in Washington, D.C.

MBA students Gregg Judd, Elyse Petersen and Brendan Jinnohara are a part of a team that will represent UH in the 2011 U.S. Department of Energy Solar Decathlon. “Team Hawaii” is one of 20 university teams worldwide selected to compete in the Decathlon which is focused on building net-zero energy homes. The entries will be displayed and judged at the National Mall in Washington D.C. September 23 – October 2, 2011. The Shidler students will provide marketing and fundraising services for the project. Also offering support are administration, faculty, and students from the UH Mānoa School of Architecture, College of Engineering, and Honolulu Community College and Kapi‘olani Community College. www.solar.hawaii.edu.

The Shidler Hedge Fund Management Club

As the financial markets become increasingly more sophisticated and with demand rising for experienced fund managers, Shidler’s Hedge Fund Management Club (HFMC) is preparing students to succeed in one of the most intellectually demanding industries in the world.

As a HFMC member, students apply classroom knowledge to real world situations by joining one of three investment groups which focus on bonds, securities and equities. Each group collaborates, engages in research and runs Bloomberg simulations to generate complex fund management strategies. Each month students present their final investment strategies to private investors and industry professionals who volunteer their time to provide feedback and recommendations to the group.

“It seems to work. The fund is currently up 19%, outperforming the S&P by 10% thanks to investment strategies such as ‘covered call writing’,” commented Gunter Meissner, investor in the MFEIC. “This is a strategy where an investor in quiet markets sells a call option on a stock that she or he owns to capture the option premium.”

The club also facilitates networking between current students, alumni and professionals and exposes students to the many career paths within the hedge fund industry including research, trading, asset allocation, institutional investing, investor relations, prime brokerage, etc.

A majority of the club members are students of Shidler’s Master of Financial Engineering program but all majors are welcome.

Top students inducted into national honor society

Last fall, the College’s top business students were inducted into UH Mānoa’s chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma (BGS). Thirty-two undergraduate and 30 graduate students joined the lifetime honor society on November 13 at a special induction ceremony followed by a reception for family and friends. Students who rank in the top 10 percent of their junior or senior class, top 20 percent of their graduating master’s class or have completed all doctoral requirements at an AACSB International accredited business program are eligible for membership and all its benefits.

Graduate student club promotes environmental consciousness and professional development

Under the guidance of representatives from the Mānoa Cliff Native Forest Restoration Project, members of the UH Graduate Business Student Association (GBSA) volunteered to help restore native plant life in Mānoa Valley. The students spent the morning of February 20 clearing trails and eradicating invasive plants from a portion of the 6-acre restoration area.

Other GBSA events held this semester include a Welcome Back Relaxer on January 14 and a Professional Site Visit on January 20 to The Ulupono Initiative and Reuse Hawaii. The group had an opportunity to meet with Shidler alums at Ulupono including General Partner Robin Campaniano (EMBA ’83). In March, GBSA members volunteered at the Pride in Mo‘ili‘ili Cleanup and went on a site visit to the Hawai‘i State Capitol. In April, there was an ‘80s Themed Relaxer, a site visit to Matson and a soccer match between GBSA members and students of the William S. Richardson School of Law.

China MBA students tour U.S. West Coast

U.S. International MBA students from China capped off their final semester by participating in a special tour of the U.S. West Coast. The six-day trip provided a first-hand look at the cultural, managerial and structural differences among a variety of businesses in the San Francisco and Seattle areas. Companies visited in San Francisco and Silicon Valley included Gallup, where Senior Consultant Jeremie Brecheinsen (MBA ’10) hosted the group, Nordstrom San Francisco, and Informatica and Google where alums Earl Fry (BBA ’80) and Swan Boon (BBA ’89) spent time with the students. In the Seattle area, visits to Costco, Ben Bridge and Boeing rounded out the tour.

Students of the U.S. International MBA program spent ten months completing core MBA classes at Sun Yat-Sen University in Guangzhou, China and spent seven months studying American business strategy, management, and finance at the Shidler College. The program culminated with the U.S. West Coast tour followed by a six-week internship with a U.S. company.

Bootcamp for Entrepreneurs

The Pacific Asian Center for Entrepreneurship held two Entrepreneurs’ Bootcamp workshops in February and March. The events attracted over 150 students looking to maximize their entrepreneurial potential. The sessions, which are available for viewing on the web (www.shidler.hawaii.edu/pace), focused on the fundamentals of writing an effective executive summary and business plan.
Southeast Asia Faculty Development in International Business

The 2011 Southeast Asia Faculty Development in International Business (FDIB), organized by the UH CIBER, explored the unique aspects of doing business in Southeast Asia, comparing and contrasting the business environments in Singapore and Malaysia. Twenty-three business school faculty were hosted by various organizations during the ten-day trip in January.

In Singapore, the trip focused on the country’s innovation economy with an emphasis on its technology and biomedical research thrusts. This portion of the tour included site visits to the Medtronic, the U.S. Embassy, and the Singapore Urban Redevelopment Authority. Cultural activities included tours of Little India, Arab Street, and Chinatown and a birds-eye-view from the 50-story Skypark.

The Malaysia segment focused on the unique aspects of doing business in Islamic Asia, with emphasis on Islamic banking, the Halal foods industry, and working in a multicultural society. This was supported by visits to the International Centre for Education in Islamic Finance, Universiti Putra Malaysia, Malaysian Palm Oil Board, and Cargill’s Port Klang Palm Oil Refinery. Cultural activities included a 272-stair climb up to the Batu Caves, a tour of the historic port town of Malacca, and a walk across the Petronas Towers Skybridge to peer from atop the 88-story observatory.

The faculty development program was hosted by the UH and University of Wisconsin CIBERs and was sponsored by 14 CIBER schools from across the U.S.

Mauna Kea Observatory executives learn effective leadership skills

Senior executives and directors from several Mauna Kea observatories on the Big Island enrolled in a special leadership course organized by Shidler’s Executive Education Center. Nearly a dozen participants from the Subaru Telescope, Joint Astronomy Center, and the Gemini and W.M. Keck observatories attended the day-long seminar on Effective Leadership led by UH President Emeritus David McClain. The course explored leadership techniques and ways to foster a collaborative work environment. It also incorporated role playing and case scenarios geared to inspire and engage employees.

“Often times, we need to be reminded of what is required to be a leader,” commented Peter Wizinowich, senior manager of the Optical Systems Department at the Keck Observatory. “I need to be more conscious about using effective leadership skills and this [seminar] has helped me to do that,” he continued. The seminar was held December 13, 2010 at the Gemini Observatory. Positive feedback and strong demand for leadership training opportunities resulted in a second course held on April 8, 2011 at the Canada France Hawaii Telescope in Waimea.

The Executive Education Center offers an array of customized programs specifically designed to meet the needs of participants.

Annual retreat helps family businesses

Each fall, members of the Family Business Center of Hawai‘i (FBCH) look forward to their Annual Retreat and this year’s event once again lived up to expectations. Lee Hausner, a well-known family business consultant and psychologist, led the two-day retreat. Close to 60 members were in attendance including many from the FBCH’s Maui chapter. Highlights included workshops and seminars focused on a variety of issues that relate to family businesses such as family business succession, identifying key generational communication issues, and creating a “legacy family.” Attendees also had an opportunity to meet in private consultation sessions with Dr. Hausner. The retreat was held on October 8-9, 2010 at the Outrigger Reef on the Beach.

In recent years, the FBCH has experienced tremendous growth and has expanded the services and benefits offered to its members. This January, FBCH began video recording its speakers so that members who were not able to attend meetings are still able to watch the presentations online. Also the Center is currently developing a secure online directory where members can access contact information for one another. This is truly an exciting time to be a part of the FBCH.

BOOKS
Current Business and Legal Issues in Japan’s Banking and Finance Industry, 2nd Edition

Professor of Finance Mitsuru Misawa added five new chapters to his book to reflect Japan’s current economic changes and laws. Chapters include: a recent reform of banking law—U.S. and Japanese Comparative Study on Creation of Legal System for Banking Agencies; Japanese Shareholders’ Lawsuits Concerning Political Donations; Financing Japanese Investments in the United States —Case Studies of a Large and a Medium-Sized Firm; New Japanese-Style Management in a Changing Era; and Successful Japanese Management Cases as a Contrarian. This book also features insight into Japanese perspectives on finance, law and business to help foreign companies develop a better understanding of Japan’s economy.
Renowned Yahoo! Finance and Newsweek columnist discusses the rise and fall of America’s economy

Renowned financial columnist Daniel Gross was the guest speaker at a special lecture hosted by the Shidler Alumni Association. During his speech, Gross presented an optimistic view of America’s financial recovery. He also discussed several factors that influenced the economic rise and/or downturn of countries such as Japan and China and explained why he believes the U.S. is unique and will rebound from the financial crisis with great success. “I don’t think it’s too much to suggest that the U.S. has been and will remain a different creature among nations both politically and economically,” said Gross. “In the way we respond and react to crisis, in the way our public and private sectors act and the way we innovate and find opportunities, it is in my opinion that the U.S., despite all its problems, is pretty well situated to take advantage of the changes that are going on in the world,” continued Gross.

After his presentation, Gross addressed questions from alumni and signed copies of his latest book, Dumb Money.

Gross is the economics editor and columnist at Yahoo! Finance and a business columnist at Newsweek.

Talk Story with Daniel Gross was held on February 22 at The Plaza Club. Nearly 70 alumni and friends were in attendance. Gross’ presentation, “Left for Dead: The Fall and Rise of the American Economy,” can be found online at www.vimeo.com/shidlercollege.

Full-Time MBA Student and Alumni Lunch

Professional Services Social

UH Alumni Reunion in Singapore
The Full-Time MBA Student and Alumni Lunch on December 3 allowed Full-Time MBA students to meet with recent graduates of the program. Alumni had fun recounting their time at Shidler and offered the new recruits advice on everything from surviving exams to mastering tough courses.

The Kaua‘i Alumni Event and Big Island Alumni Event brought Shidler graduates together for relaxing evenings held in true local style – eating, drinking and talking story. Mahalo to Jim (MBA ’85) and Janet Mayfield for hosting such a wonderful event at their home in Lihue, Kaua‘i on January 5. The Big Island Alumni Event was held on March 4 at the Hapuna Beach Prince Hotel on the Kohala Coast of the Big Island.

The Professional Services Social is a pau hana worth attending. Growing more popular with each passing month, the January 27 mixer attracted over 150 professionals from all industries to Ka Restaurant & Lounge for drinks, pupus and networking. This event is held several times throughout the year and is co-hosted by the Shidler Alumni Association and the Young Lawyers Division of the Hawaii State Bar Association.

The UH Shidler Alumni and Student Club Social was held on February 16 at The Willows. Organized by the Shidler Alumni Association, the event provided an opportunity for alumni to meet with students club members and learn about upcoming club events and volunteer opportunities.

The UH Alumni Reunion Dinner in Singapore and the UHAA Japan Chapter Spring Event were fantastic celebrations of UH pride. In Singapore, Shidler alums gathered with their fellow UH alums at the Fremantle Seafood Market in Clarke Quay on February 26. Attendees enjoyed a memorable evening of camaraderie, hula dancing, and wonderful food and drinks. Shidler Dean Vance Roley and June Naughton from UH International Student Services (retired) were the special guests of the evening. The following week, alums in Japan attended an event at the Oakwood Premier Tokyo Midtown on March 5. They were joined by students of the Japan-Focused MBA program. A highlight of the evening was a performance by a 30-member hula halau with a formal royal court.

H omecoming week is always great fun. It’s a time for alumni to reconnect with former classmates, cheer on the Warriors, and display their school spirit. This year, as a part of UH Mānoa’s homecoming celebration, the College hosted its annual “Back to Business” event for alumni and friends. Participants spent the afternoon enhancing their business knowledge in lectures presented by Professors Dana Alden and Sonia Ghumman. Alden presented the latest management perspectives from Indonesia and China, and Ghumman explored factors that affect work productivity with her presentation, “Exploring the Dynamic Relationship between Work and Sleep.” Following a sunset reception in the Shidler courtyard, alumni attended the Wahine volleyball game vs. Boise State. The event, which was booked to capacity, was held on October 29, 2010 at the Shidler College of Business.
Nicolé Galase spent the fall and winter months working at The Midway Atoll National Wildlife Refuge under the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Here is a brief recount of her experiences as a conservationist at one of the world’s most isolated wildlife refuges.

“I’m so excited to be on Midway during this time of year because there are monumental things happening right now. The photos I sent are of the very rare short tailed albatross, also known as the Stellar albatross. I’ve watched a pair of birds sit on their egg and I was the first person to break the news to the refuge manager that the female had returned to the nest – a great sign that the egg is viable. He was elated and let out a “wahoo” in the middle of his conference call. Hopefully we will have a new short-tailed chick sometime in January. There are albatross everywhere! I actually have to dodge them to stay out of their way.

Although my time at Midway will be brief, I’ve been involved with many interesting projects including habitat restoration, albatross banding and reproductive success surveys, Laysan duck resightings, and marine debris studies. This has been a fantastic experience and although I have not taken the traditional post-business school path, I have definitely applied my business studies in the science field, where management and efficiency is a vital component for success.”

It has been just 16 months since Michele Saito took the reins as president of Farmers Insurance Hawaii. In that short time, this warm-hearted pint-sized executive has made a big impact on her company, her employees, and the business community. Last year, Saito capitalized on her local knowledge and industry experience to guide the company and its people through Farmers’ buyout of AIG Hawaii. Saito and her team successfully managed the transition and today, Farmers is rapidly building a name as a local favorite in the personal auto insurance industry.

This year marks Saito’s 26th year with the company. She first joined the organization in 1984 as an accounting manager overseeing a department of seven. Known at the time as Hawaii Insurance Consultants, the firm had just 60 people on staff. Over time, as the company grew so did Saito. She worked her way through the ranks and in 2009, she was named executive vice president and chief operating officer. Today as president, Saito oversees an $85 million company with over 250 employees on Oahu, Maui, the Big Island and Kaua’i making it one of the largest insurance companies in the state.

Saito is very active in the community. She has made countless appearances in the media to promote Farmers’ community initiatives. She also serves on several non-profit boards including the UH Alumni Association, Honolulu Japanese Chamber of Commerce, Aloha United Way and Child and Family Service. In her spare time, she volunteers with the Girl Scouts of Hawai’i and ‘Iolani School in support of her daughter Kristen.

For tri-athletes, there is no race more coveted than the Ford Ironman World Championships in Kona. For siblings Amber (BBA ’09) and Matthew Lam (BBA candidate ’11), qualifying and competing in the Championships for the first time was an experience of a lifetime. Tens-of-thousands aspire to earn one of the 1,800 Ironman slots and for siblings to qualify in the same year is considered unprecedented. “On October 9th, we had the opportunity to test ourselves in one of the biggest events the sports world has to offer: a 2.4-mile swim in rough waters, a 112-mile bike ride through treacherous lava fields, and a 26.2-mile marathon in the scorching heat,” explained Matthew. “The road to the finish line was rewarding and challenging both physically and mentally.” The pair qualified for the event after completing the Hawai’i Half-Ironman 70.3 race in June. “We’ve made lifelong friends, became closer as siblings, and improved our skills tremendously. Now we know that anything is possible!” said Matthew.
Bank. He has over 19 years of banking experience.

2000s

Grant Arakaki (BBA ’00) has been appointed assistant vice president loan officer with Territorial Savings Bank. He has been with the bank since 2005 and previously served as a loan officer. Marivic Chico (BBA ’06) has been promoted to assistant branch manager for Aloha Pacific Federal Credit Union’s Kaimuki and Hawaii Kai branches. She has nearly a decade of financial services experience and has been in the credit union industry for five years. Congratulations to Candes Meijide Gentry (MBA ’04) for her outstanding performances in last year’s XTERRA Trail Run World Championships and Honolulu Marathon. Gentry placed seventh overall among the females, and first among the Kama’aina, at the XTERRA Championships held at Kualoa Ranch on December 5. Her time was 1:41:20. One week later, Gentry competed in the Honolulu Marathon finishing fourth in her age group. She also won the “Kama’aina Award” as the first Hawai’i resident among the females to cross the finish line. Her time was 3:21:06. She was also the spokesperson for the Honolulu 5K on May 1 – an event that donates 100% of the proceeds to Hawai’i schools. Learn more at www.honolulu5k.org. A former Miss Hawaii 1999, Gentry is an accomplished athlete, performer and world traveler. She is director of Gentry Pacific, Ltd., one of the many family-owned businesses in which she is an active shareholder. Michelle Gibson (BBA ’01, MACC ’03) has been promoted to manager with Accuity LLP. She previously served as audit supervisor. She has been with the firm for five years. Eva Hang (BBA ’03) has been named internal audit manager for Outrigger Enterprises Group. Hang, a certified public accountant, most recently served as controller for Pipeline Micro Inc. and prior to that, worked as an internal auditor for the State of Hawai’i Department of Education.

Robert G. Hill III (NIMBA ’02) has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Hawaii Army National Guard. Hill continues to serve as deputy commander of administration for the Medical Command in the Medical Service Corps Branch. Ramon Hollander (EMBA ’09) has been appointed director for Respiratory Care Services at Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children. Hollander and his family recently relocated to Hawai’i from Florida where he served as director for the Respiratory Therapy Program at ATI Enterprises in Fort Lauderdale. Reyn Kauhane (BBA ’05) has been promoted to retail store manager at the new Queen Kaahumanu store in Kahului, Maui. Previously he was assistant store manager at the Windward Mall store in Kaneohe. Carissa Langley (BBA ’10) has been hired as a quality assurance executive for Value Hospitality Group, headquartered in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. Value Hospitality is an umbrella management organization that is currently managing a number of three and four star hotels located throughout Western Peninsular Malaysia and Eastern Malaysia on the island of Borneo. In addition to his work in the hospitality industry, Lackey will be getting married to his fiancée of five years this July in Seattle, Washington.

Daehoon “Danny” Lee (BBA ’09) has relocated from New York to Seoul to pursue new opportunities. Lee explained that he is excited about his new job as a Risk Analysis Unit Analyst with HSBC and looks forward to the new and interesting experiences that await him. “This is going to be another adventure for me. I arrived in Korea on Thursday, I had four interviews on Friday morning and by Friday afternoon, I received an offer,” said Lee. “Life is always full of surprises.” Previously, Lee worked as an operations specialist with Brown Brothers & Harriman in New Jersey. Steven Mazur (MBA ’10) has been hired as a project developer for RevoluSun. Previously, he worked as an independent consultant providing strategic counsel on finance and marketing for clients such as Oceanit and Better Place Hawai'i. Congratulations to Darin and Toni Mingo (MHRM ’07) upon the birth of their new son Kaikea, who was born on August 10, 2010. Kaikea is sure to be a natural born runner as Mingo, who was unaware that she was carrying Kaikea at the time, competed in the California International Marathon during the early stages of her pregnancy. Toni finished the race in three hours and twenty-eight minutes.

John Matsumoto has enjoyed success in the state of Washington as a sales and marketing executive. He currently serves as the director of global sales enablement for Amazon.com in Seattle where he oversees advertising sales strategies and operations for the online retailer’s display ad business.

Initially, Matsumoto’s career started out in the accounting industry. Upon graduating from UH in 1990, he accepted a position with Arthur Andersen’s Honolulu office where he began building his experience in the tax and audit services industry. After a few years, Matsumoto relocated to Washington where he joined Deloitte & Touche in Seattle.

In 1999, Matsumoto decided to take on new challenges and embarked on a career in sales and marketing. He accepted a position as director of sales strategy and compensation with QwestDex, a directory services solutions company. After honing his skills and developing a passion for the profession, he landed a job with Microsoft. He served as the company’s director in the national account services group for eight years before joining the Amazon team.

Matsumoto and his wife Dawn, who is also a Shidler accounting graduate, have two children Daniel and Joseph. The Matsumoto family enjoys life in Seattle but looks forward to their annual trips home to Hawai’i to visit with family and friends.
Robert Newstead (MBA ‘05) has been named vice president of the Debt and Equity Finance Group at CB Richard Ellis. Newstead works with clients to provide financing solutions for commercial and multi-family real estate investments. He is a licensed broker in Hawaii and California with nearly 10 years of experience in real estate finance. Prior to joining the firm, Newstead served as a senior consultant for Booz Allen Hamilton in Honolulu.

Kit Okazaki (MBa ‘08) has been hired as an agent by State Farm Insurance. He will be located on Makawao Avenue in Upcountry Maui. He previously served as a wealth advisor with Bank of Hawaii.

Layne Okumura (BBa ‘01) has been named information technology manager for the Hawaii Convention Center. He was previously the lead infrastructure technician for The Honolulu Advertiser. Congratulations to Noel Pietsch (EMBA candidate) and Mike Pietsch (EMBA ‘09) upon the grand opening of their newest Wahoo Fish Taco restaurant in Kahala. Noel and Mike co-own Wahoo’s along with their sister Stephanie. The Pietschs’ first flagship restaurant opened on Ward Avenue in 2006.

Deborah Revilla (MHRM ‘05) has been named president of the Society of Human Resource Management. Revilla currently works for Hawaiian Electric Company’s Workforce Staffing and Development team.

Stephen K. Rodgers (MBA ‘01) has been promoted to executive vice president in the investment services group of Bank of Hawaii. Rodgers, who formerly served as senior vice president at the bank, will continue to serve as the bank’s chief investment officer.

Ken Sahara (BBA ‘06) has been named revenue manager at The Royal Hawaiian, a Luxury Collection Resort. His responsibilities include analyzing and implementing sales strategies to capture optimal revenue producing businesses for the resort. Sahara previously served as beach and pool manager for the hotel.

Krista Song (BBa ‘03) has been promoted to senior manager with Accuity LLP. She previously served as audit manager. Congratulations to Aryeh Sternberg (VEMBA ‘03) upon being named the “Digital Rising Star in Asia” at Campaign Asia-Pacific’s 2010 Digital Media Awards. Sternberg was recognized for his work on Vietnam’s first Augmented Reality campaign for Rexona and for launching the first mobile internet initiative via Admob. He was also recently named the “Largest Individual Contributor in 2010” by Yahoo! Vietnam for his contributions to the growth of the digital marketing

Three Alums Celebrate Launch of Jungle Beer

Adi Challa (JEMBA ‘07), John Kuo (CHEMBA ‘07) and Jonathan Tien (CHEMBA ‘06) recently celebrated the launch of their new business—Jungle Beer. The three beer enthusiasts, who first met in the MBA program, opened their first microbrewery this March in Singapore. “In Singapore, Asia and the rest of the tropics, the food has the most sophisticated flavors,” explains Challa. “We set out to create beers that embody the spirit of the tropics—rich, vibrant, full of character . . . beers that don’t just wash down the food but complement it and enrich the experience.” Challa holds a Masters in Brewing and Distilling and has a background in database engineering, rural development and market research. Kuo and Tien developed a passion for exotic beers and “whacky flavors” while traveling for business and pleasure throughout Asia. Jungle Beer will be available soon in pubs throughout Singapore. industry in his country. Sternberg is the interaction director for GroupM Vietnam which is the country’s largest advertising agency. Sternberg and his team also just completed the 3rd season for Vietnam Idol which has been the single most successful social media campaign in the history of Vietnam with more than 20 million online videos viewed. Mark Summerill (MBa ’07) has recently been hired as the treasury manager for XanGo LLC where he oversees the banking activities for the company in 25 countries throughout Eastern and Western Europe. He is based in Salt Lake City, Utah. XanGo is a leading global nutrition company recognized as a leader in health and wellness products. Lee Tokuhara (EMBa ’05) has been named board president and vice president of finance for The International Association of Business Communicators Hawaii. Tokuhara currently serves as vice president of Bennet Group Strategic Communications. Major General Darryll Wong (EMBa ’09) has been named adjunct general of the Hawaii State Department of Defense. Wong is chief of staff of Hawaii Air National Guard and also serves as Commander, Hawaii Air National Guard, Hickam Air Force Base. He joined the Hawaii Air National Guard in November 1984. General Wong received his commission as a distinguished graduate from UH’s Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps Program. Kalbert Young (MBa ’00) has been named the budget and finance director for the State of Hawai’i. Young previously served as the finance director of Maui County since 2004. Prior to that, he worked at the Kapalua Land Co., the Hawaii State Legislature, and Kamehameha Schools. Young was Maui County’s first small-business advocate, working in the Office of Economic Development where he led the effort to establish the Maui County Business Resource Center and County Store at the Maui Mall in Kahului.

ALUMNI NEWS

Congratulations to Jeremie Brecheisen on his new job at Gallup in San Francisco. After graduating from the China International MBA program last May, Brecheisen accepted a position as a senior consultant with the renowned statistical research and consulting giant.

“My job is to help clients understand how important it is to invest in their people,” stated Brecheisen, whose clientele consists of Fortune 500 companies in the western U.S. “Every employee and every customer has some impact on a company’s business outcome, and at Gallup, we can provide the insight to help companies take steps to improve their processes.”

Brecheisen credits the MBA program with preparing him well for his position. “The Shidler model of using teams to work on case studies has helped me to be a productive member on Gallup consulting teams. It was helpful to have that experience with team dynamics, group leadership, and role expectations.”

Prior to entering the MBA program, Brecheisen worked for Kingold Group Companies as a senior communications consultant.

Ezra Ng (BBA ’08)

Business Analyst, Hawaiian Airlines

Ezra Ng has been promoted to business analyst for the IT Process Improvement team at Hawaiian Airlines. Ng was a part of the first class of students to participate in Hawaiian’s IT Process Improvement Internship Program. Upon the successful completion of his internship, Ng accepted a full-time position with Hawaiian Airlines as a junior business analyst. “Demonstrating a strong work ethic, open-mindedness in learning and a commitment to producing quality deliverables, we were fortunate to have Ezra join our full-time ranks after graduating from Shidler,” commented Brent Oshiro (BBA ’02), senior manager of IT Process Improvement. “He has really become a model for the type of employee we are looking for.”
Shidler alumni who work within the Finance Factors Family of Companies gather in Finance Factors’ Downtown Honolulu Branch.

The Finance Factors Family of Companies – which consists of Finance Factors, Finance Realty and Finance Insurance – has approximately 30 employees who graduated from the UH Shidler College of Business. Over the years, the organization has provided ongoing monetary support to UH and Shidler, plus internships and career opportunities to students and alumni.

Mahalo to the Finance Factors Family of Companies for their continued generous support of the University of Hawai‘i and the Shidler College of Business.
