I’m proud of what the college has been able to achieve over the past eight years in elevating its programs and securing its place among the top-ranked business schools.

Jay H. Shidler
It is the largest donation ever made to the University of Hawai‘i from a private donor.

Jay H. Shidler, a 1968 alumnus of the Shidler College of Business and long-time Hawai‘i resident, gave the college ownership interest (leased fees) in various land parcels underlying significant office buildings in Chicago, Illinois; Charlotte, North Carolina; Columbus, Ohio; and Nashville, Tennessee. He is also giving the college 100 percent ownership interest on a leased-fee property underlying a Denver, Colorado commercial office building, as well as cash gifts, in-kind gifts, and marketable securities.

Like Kamehameha Schools, which generates significant income from leased fees under homes and commercial buildings, the Shidler College of Business will receive leased-fee income in perpetuity to meet its long-term financial needs.

This new gift comes in addition to Mr. Shidler’s initial gift of $25 million to the college in 2006 and the $6 million he gave in subsequent years to further renovate the college's facilities. His new commitment of $69 million brings Mr. Shidler’s total donation to the college to $100 million.

The public announcement of the gift was made at a special press conference held in the courtyard of the Shidler College of Business.

Join us in celebrating the Visionary Gift through social media.

A Gift That Will Keep On Giving
A large portion of Jay H. Shidler’s new commitment to the Shidler College of Business includes leased-fee land underlying commercial buildings in Illinois, North Carolina, Ohio, and Tennessee.

Dean Vance Roley and Mr. Shidler were joined by UH President David Lassner and UH Foundation President and CEO Donna Vuchinich for the momentous occasion. Also, in attendance were representatives from the UH Board of Regents, UH Foundation, UH Mānoa Chancellor’s Office, Shidler College of Business, and special guests who gathered to hear the historic news.

“We are incredibly grateful to Mr. Shidler for his continuing support of the University of Hawai‘i and the college that bears his name,” said UH President David Lassner. “This latest gift will have a lasting impact on the Shidler College of Business, the university, and the state of Hawai‘i.”

UH Foundation President and CEO Donna Vuchinich commented that the management-free, long-term, leased-fee assets that are a part of Mr. Shidler’s gift are an ideal way to build an endowment and provide secure and predictable income for the college for many decades to come.

Mr. Shidler expressed that he was really encouraged by all of the college’s accomplishments since his first gift was made in 2006. “I’m proud of what the college has been able to achieve over the past eight years in elevating its

“It’s so exciting. We are already afforded amazing opportunities here at the college and I think this is really only going to expand what is offered to us.”

Significant progress has been made in many areas that directly impact students, faculty, and programs.

The additional funding has allowed for the development of successful new academic programs such as the Full-Time MBA Program, the Distance Learning Executive MBA Program which serves neighbor island residents, and the Direct Admit Program which is geared for high-achieving freshmen majoring in business.

It has also facilitated a significant increase in student scholarships, faculty research support, and allowed for much-needed renovations and upgrades to the building and the surrounding grounds.

According to Roley, this gift exemplifies Mr. Shidler’s deep commitment to the college. Roley also stated that the revenues from the gift will be used to support additional scholarship and professorship endowments to attract top students and faculty, improve the graduate and undergraduate business programs, and build upon the significant progress that the college has made in recent years.

“Mr. Shidler’s donation will solidify the college as one of the best business schools in the country,” said Roley. “My dream is, in 30 years or so, for the top students from around the world to think of Wharton on one hand and Shidler on the other hand.”

“It is so exciting,” said Ashley Kawagishi, a current undergraduate business student. “We are already afforded amazing opportunities here at the college and I think this is really going to expand what is offered to us in the future.”

Mr. Shidler is the founder and managing partner of The Shidler Group, a Honolulu-based national investor focused on commercial real estate and credit-related investments. Over the past 40 years, his company has acquired and owned over 2,000 commercial properties in 40 states throughout the U.S. and in Canada. The Shidler Group owns approximately 1.1 million square feet of the Honolulu market, including the Davies Pacific Center, City Center, Waterfront Plaza, and the Pan Am Building.

Mr. Shidler has founded and been the initial investor in over 20 public and private companies, five of which have been listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Also, through his family foundation, he generously supports many local and national educational, cultural, and charitable organizations.

In his closing remarks at the college’s celebratory event, Mr. Shidler stated that he hopes that his leased fee-based endowment model will be used by future UH donors and he also encouraged his fellow UH alumni and friends to join him in supporting the University of Hawai‘i.

For students, there is no better way to prepare for a successful career in business than to attend Shidler’s Business Night event. Each May, hundreds of students attend this annual gathering for the opportunity to meet one-on-one with a business professional working in their field of interest. Through the time spent with their mentors, students expand their network and gain career guidance, job opportunities, and insight into their future aspirations.

“By attending Business Night, students are stepping out of the familiar school environment and into a professional business environment,” shared Rya Sekimoto, Business Night co-executive director. “It can be intimidating at first, but it is a really valuable learning experience to grow upon.”

Headlining the event as the keynote speaker was Susan Yamada (BBA ’82), executive director of the Pacific Asian Center for Entrepreneurship. Yamada’s spunky outlook on life, fun stories and practical advice made for an entertaining and inspiring talk. “My advice to you are my secrets to success,” shared Yamada. “Set your goals but keep the plan in achieving them flexible; be comfortable with discomfort and take risks to build your skill set; work hard and be prepared when opportunity knocks; and build and nurture your support team.”

The event was made possible thanks to the hard work of the students who served on this year’s planning committee. “I extend my thanks to the Business Night Committee for making this such a wonderful experience,” stated Vance Roley, Shidler College dean. “We also extend our gratitude to those who sponsored the student awards presented at the event and to the professionals who served as mentors.”

Business Night 2014 was held on May 8 at the Sheraton Waikiki. Approximately 400 students and business professionals attended the event themed, “Your Insurance is You!” in honor of First Insurance Company of Hawaii. This is the ninth consecutive year that First Insurance has served as the title sponsor for the event.

Each year, the Shidler College is honored to present several outstanding alumni and friends with its Hall of Honor Award. This annual tradition recognizes members of the Shidler ‘ohana who have achieved exceptional professional success and hold a stellar record of service to their communities and to their alma mater.

On September 30, the college’s newest award recipients were recognized at a special dinner held at the Sheraton Waikiki.

The 2014 honorees were: Roland Casamina (BBA ’76), president and CEO of House of Finance Inc.; Curtis Freeze (MBA ’87), CEO of Prospect Asset Management Inc.; James H.Q. Lee (BBA ’78), CEO of KB Lee Corporation and regent emeritus for the University of Hawai’i; Gina Mangieri (EMBA ’02), reporter for KHON and founder of The Cole Academy; and David McClain, professor and president emeritus for The University of Hawai’i System.

Nearly 500 people attended the dinner which was sponsored by Hawaii Business Magazine. Highlights included an exciting performance by the UH Mānoa Drumline, a spiritual opening ceremonial ‘oli by Kumu Edward Collier, a wonderful four-course meal, and touching testimonial videos on each of the five honorees.

In his video, Curtis Freeze reflected upon his time as a business student at the University of Hawai’i. “I think about the lessons I learned about optimism and about kindness – it’s not all about business. I really owe a lot to the University of Hawai’i,” he said.

“When I was attending college, I did not dream nor ever expect to receive something like this,” shared Roland Casamina. “But the fact that I’m standing in front of you receiving this award is something that I will always treasure.”

Students and community members contemplate controversial ethical topics at the Weinstein summer lecture series

The 16 featured speakers included recognizable names from the local and national arena such as Michael Purpura, former assistant U.S. attorney and former assistant counsel to the U.S. President; Walter Palmer, former NBA player; and Robert Harrison, chairman, president, and CEO of First Hawaiian Bank.

Not even the threat of Hurricane Iselle in August could deter the “The Ethics of Capitalism” panelists from sharing their knowledge and experience with Weinstein’s students. Although the public lecture had been officially cancelled due to the approaching storm, Robert Harrison, Will Monteleone, Jay Shidler, and Ken Tuchman fulfilled their commitment to the students by holding an informal chat about how the dedication to “success” fuels society and the ethical dilemma involved with the growing divide between the “one percent and the 99 percent.”

Weinstein is a money manager and former partner in two successful investment banking firms. Each summer, he leads a graduate course entitled, “Integrity and Ethics in the Real World,” at the UH Mānoa William S. Richardson School of Law and the Shidler College of Business. Now in his 11th summer, Weinstein continues to open these lectures to the public with the purpose of facilitating a greater understanding of the ethical issues faced by working professionals.

The 2014 lecture series, which was held July 15 - August 7, is available for viewing online at vimeo.com/shidlercollege.

Renown Korean executive provides an insider’s perspective of the opportunities and challenges facing his country’s economy

Within the past decade, Korea has risen to prominence within popular culture with its K-pop and K-drama sensations, and economically through its electronics and automotive industries.

At the Dr. N.H. Paul Chung Memorial Lecture, Dr. Yoon-Dae Euh provided insightful views on Korea’s rapidly growing economy and the opportunities and challenges that the country faces in its recently implemented Three-Year Plan. Through his extensive experience in academia, finance, and government, Euh elaborated on the plan’s strategies to encourage healthy economic fundamentals, an innovative and dynamic economy, and a balanced growth between domestic demand and exports. He also addressed critical issues including “The 50 Years of Miracles,” Korea’s aging society, the impact of neighboring China, and the reunification of the Korean peninsula.

Euh served as the CEO and chairman of KB Financial Group Inc., Korea’s largest banking group. He also served as president of Korea University, and the first chairman of the Presidential Council on Nation Branding, Korea.

The lecture was held on August 12 at the Hawaii Prince Hotel. It is held each summer in honor of Dr. N.H. Paul Chung who founded the Pacific Asian Management Institute (PAMI) in 1977 with the vision of creating a “knowledge center” for international management. UH’s entrepreneurs gain insight to the challenges and rewards of starting a business

The Pacific Asian Center for Entrepreneurship (PACE) has launched a new lecture series designed to encourage creative and global thinking among students. The Inspiring Innovation Speaker Series features entrepreneurs and company founders who share their stories of forging startups and becoming leading innovators in their industries.

Liz Schwartz, owner of Coffee Talk Inc., was the series’ inaugural speaker. Schwartz shared her journey to success with a packed house of UH’s student entrepreneurs on September 22 at the Campus Center Ballroom. Schwartz’s talk, along with those of the other featured speakers in the Inspiring Innovation Speaker Series, are available for viewing online at pace.shidler.hawaii.edu/speaker. The series is sponsored by First Insurance Company of Hawaii.

Executive Education: New and dynamic programs for health care professionals

The new Health Care Management Executive MBA track launched this fall with a class of six professionals from Hawaii Pacific Health, Queen’s Medical Center, and the John A. Burns School of Medicine. The track, running in conjunction with the Distance Learning EMBA program, was developed in consultation with the Hawai‘i Pacific Chapter of the American College of Healthcare Executives. New freshman program is growing by leaps and bounds

In just three short years, Shidler’s Freshman Direct Admit Program (DAP) has grown into one of the college’s most successful new programs.

For the fall semester, approximately 70 high-achieving incoming freshmen accepted Shidler’s invitation to be part of this elite cohort of students. Enrollment for the program has nearly doubled since it first launched in 2012.

The students are among the top freshmen at UH Mānoa. They hold an impressive average GPA of 3.82 and average SAT and ACT scores of 1764 and 25 respectively. They come to Shidler from all parts of Hawai‘i, the U.S. mainland, Alaska and Canada (65% in-state and 35% out-of-state), and include Regents Scholars, Mānoa Chancellor’s Scholars and scholar athletes.

“I really enjoy having access to the many opportunities that are presented to DAP students at Shidler,” commented Colton Goza, a DAP student from Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

“From the professional and networking events, to the exclusive business classes and access to academic advisors and scholarships, this is certainly a great program for students interested in business.”

The program’s success is rooted in the stellar efforts of the DAP admission and advising staff who spent time meeting with high school students, parents, and counselors in Hawai‘i and on the west coast to promote all that this new program has to offer.

“What really makes Shidler’s freshman program different from other business programs is the sense of ‘ohana or family you have here,” commented Irene Galinato, freshmen admissions advisor. “We’re a small college in a large university so you get that personal attention. Students get to know each other, as well as the faculty and staff, on a deeper level. You just don’t get that at other schools.”

The Freshman Direct Admit Program is designed for high-achieving incoming freshmen at UH who wish to gain a head start on their business curriculum. Outstanding high school seniors are invited to join the program upon their acceptance to the University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa. Admission into the program is highly competitive and is based on GPA, SAT and ACT scores.

Research Spotlight

Stephen Vargo is named one of the World’s Most Influential Scientific Minds

In July, Stephen Vargo, Shidler College Distinguished Professor of Marketing, was named one of the World’s Most Influential Scientific Minds for 2014 by Thomson Reuters, the world’s leading source of intelligent information for businesses and professionals. Vargo was listed among the top scholars in the world for publishing the highest number of articles that rank among those most frequently cited by researchers.

For the last ten years, Vargo, along with R.F. Lusch from the University of Arizona, has been challenging the conceptual foundations of business and economics by proposing that the essence of human exchange is best characterized in terms of service-for-service. That is, service (the use of one’s abilities for another’s benefit) is the basis of exchange. Goods, when involved, are seen as service-provision mechanisms. While this “Service-Dominant Logic” was initiated through marketing literature, it has found support in diverse fields such as human resources, information technology, business ethics and sustainability, hospitality management, and other disciplines. It has also been suggested as a foundation for the better understanding of social exchange in general.

Since 2004, Vargo has published 175 research papers, including two books and articles in the following top journals: Journal of Marketing, Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science, Journal Service Research, Journal of International Marketing and Journal of Retailing. He also has made 105 presentations, including 35 as keynote speaker, at major conferences around the world. Currently, Vargo has over 17,000 citations based on his Google Scholar Citations.

A Message from Unyong

"If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more, do more, and become more, you are a leader.” - John Quincy Adams

Jay H. Shidler has always been a “visionary.” As a business student, while working part-time at a real estate appraisal firm, as a weekly real estate columnist, and certainly when he formed The Shidler Group in 1971 – he had a vision that his company would acquire and own over 2,000 properties in 40 states and Canada.

In 2006, he had a vision that the college had great potential and thus he invested $25 million and later an additional $6 million.

Now in 2014, his VISIONARY GIFT verifies that we have exceeded his expectations. Our beloved Shidler College of Business is now a $100 million business school!

We can all be visionaries in our own way. Let’s all dream more, learn more, do more, and become more. Let’s invest in the students, faculty, and programs of the Shidler College of Business. Let’s volunteer to mentor and guest speak. Let’s provide internships and jobs. Let’s continue to build the Shidler ‘ohana. Let’s be visionary.

To learn more about how you can invest in the future of the Shidler College of Business, please contact me at unyong.nakata@uhfoundation.org or (808) 956-3597. It would be my privilege to chat with you.

The Shidler College celebrates the opening of the newly upgraded Lum Yip Kee Graduate Reading Room

This past June, the Shidler College celebrated the completion of the newly upgraded Lum Yip Kee Graduate Reading Room with a special Hawaiian blessing ceremony.

Thanks to a gift from Lum Yip Kee, Limited, a local investment and real estate company, the room received electrical upgrades and new computers, workstations, chairs, carpeting and mobile tables were installed.

“Thousands of graduate business students have utilized the Lum Yip Kee Graduate Reading Room as a place to study, collaborate and hone their business skills,” commented Vance Roley, dean of the Shidler College of Business. “I think Mr. Lum would be proud that his legacy continues through the success of our students.”

Lum Yip Kee, Limited first established the room in 1976 in honor of Honolulu entrepreneur and banker Lum Yip Kee (1866-1943). Lum was known as a pioneer in the agriculture, merchandising, banking and land development industries in Hawai‘i. Over the past 37 years, the room has undergone numerous renovations all generously funded by Lum Yip Kee, Limited.

The Family Business Center of Hawai`i establishes a $1 million professorship at the Shidler College

The Family Business Center of Hawai‘i (FBCH) has committed $1 million to establish the Family Business Center of Hawai‘i Distinguished Professorship to recruit and retain faculty who will serve as the center’s faculty director, teach courses, and conduct research in family business.

“This professorship recognizes the need to support Hawai‘i’s family-owned organizations with the academic skills that are necessary to ensure the ability to perpetuate these organizations and equip their future leaders,” said Ken Gilbert, chair of the center’s advisory board and president of Business Consulting Resources Inc.

For a full list of the family businesses that have contributed to the FBCH professorship, visit, shidler.hawaii.edu/news.

The Family Business Center of Hawai‘i meets the unique challenges faced by successful family businesses. It is a partnership between Hawai‘i’s family business community and the Shidler College. The center provides opportunities for families to address many of the challenges they face by providing educational seminars and a forum for the exchange of information between families so that they can survive and thrive through future generations. HEMIC honors its first CEO with a scholarship endowment

The Hawaii Employers’ Mutual Insurance Company (HEMIC) is honoring its first CEO, Robert L. Dove, Jr., by funding an endowed scholarship with a $230,000 gift. The Robert L. Dove, Jr. Endowed Scholarship for Insurance Excellence will provide four-year renewable scholarships to incoming freshmen from Hawai‘i high schools who are pursuing a business degree at Shidler. A preference will be given to those expressing an interest in finance with a concentration in insurance and risk management.

Dove was hired as HEMIC’s first CEO in 1997. He led the formation of the company and turned it into Hawai‘i’s largest workers’ compensation insurer, reporting annual revenue of nearly $50 million in 2013. In 2012, Dove retired but continued to serve as a company director until October 2014. “Throughout his 40-plus-year career, Bob was a strong advocate for insurance education and professionalism, supporting both local education and industry-specific training and development curriculums,” said HEMIC CEO Martin J. Welch. “We are honored to recognize his many contributions to the workers’ compensation industry by supporting future business leaders in this meaningful way.”

PACE Campaign Update

The Pacific Asian Center for Entrepreneurship continues to gain momentum and has surpassed the halfway mark to its $3 million fundraising goal. In addition to the generous private, corporate and institutional donations, the center was recently awarded a $510,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Commerce Economic Development Administration. Funds raised through the PACE Pitch Initiative will be used to create new programs, grow existing programs and update facilities. Mahalo to the following companies for their support. Central Pacific Bank - $200,000

“PACE plays a significant role in Hawai‘i’s economic diversification by supporting the growth of our innovation-based industry,” commented John Dean, chairman and CEO of Central Pacific Bank (CPB). Many of the bank’s executives are supporters of entrepreneurship in the community and at UH. Dean serves as the chair of the PACE board of directors and the bank’s Executive Vice President and CFO Denis Isono serves as a board director. Two co-working spaces at the new center will be named after Dean and CPB.

American Savings Bank - $100,000

“At American Savings Bank, we have been investing in Hawai‘i’s future for over 85 years. Supporting the PACE initiative is an investment in the next generation of entrepreneurs who will lead our state and support growth in our community,” said Rich Wacker, president and CEO of American Savings Bank. In recognition of the bank’s five-year commitment, one of the co-working spaces within the new center will be named in its honor.

First Insurance Company of Hawaii - $100,000

“In this competitive business climate, First Insurance has made entrepreneurial thinking a priority,” said Allen Uyeda, former CEO of First Insurance Company of Hawaii (FICOH). “We have launched operating programs focused on new ideas and have increased collaboration and open communication with an emphasis on change. Our support of PACE ensures more graduates are acquainted with these concepts. These virtues benefit not only our business but our entire State.” A co-working space within the new center will be named in FICOH’s honor.
