HALL OF HONOR AWARDS
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 2013
SHERATON WAIKIKI
Aloha,

Thank you for joining us at the Shidler College of Business 2013 Hall of Honor Awards.

The Shidler Hall of Honor is just one of the many events that allows the College to connect with its alumni and the greater business community. In the past year alone, we have met with hundreds of prospective students, alumni and business leaders throughout Hawai‘i and in California, Washington, Hong Kong, Japan, Singapore and Vietnam. Our alumni and friends are truly amazing. They are thriving professionals and respected leaders who offer their support to help the College attain new levels of success.

Tonight, we are honored to welcome four remarkable alumni into the Shidler Hall of Honor: Susan Eichor, president and chief operating officer of aio; Denis Isono, executive vice president and chief financial officer of Central Pacific Bank; Angela Lee, Mechthild Esser Nemmers Professor of Marketing from the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University; Keith Sakamoto, president and chief executive officer of Hawaiian Host. These individuals represent the best in business by showing outstanding commitment to their communities through their leadership, talents and charitable work.

Tonight, we are also honored to have Shidler alumna Dee Jay Mailer as our keynote speaker. As CEO of Kamehameha Schools, Dee Jay oversees a vast educational system and is responsible for strengthening the schools endowment, overseeing the stewardship of its lands, and supporting the practice of Hawaiian culture and language. Recently, Dee Jay has announced that she is retiring from Kamehameha Schools in 2014. Therefore, we are especially pleased that she has accepted our invitation to share her insights on the future of Hawai‘i and the Kamehameha Schools.

We also want to thank several individuals who have played an integral part in the success of this annual event: Emcee Barbara Tanabe, Bobby Senaha, publisher of Hawaii Business; Robin Campaniano, chair of the Shidler College of Business Advisory Council; the Shidler Alumni Association’s officers and directors; and of course, Jay Shidler.

Finally, we want to thank all of you here tonight who continue to support the College. There are over 15,000 Shidler alumni who reside in Hawai‘i, many of whom are representing their companies here tonight. Thank you for joining us, and I hope you have an enjoyable evening.

Sincerely,

Vance Roley
Aloha and congratulations to the 2013 Hall of Honor inductees!

Hawaii Business magazine is honored to be the title sponsor of this event and a supporter of the Shidler College of Business. The College, frequently named among the nation’s top business schools, plays a crucial role in training the leaders of Hawai‘i.

Think of the huge role that past graduates have played in Hawai‘i’s economy and the broader community: Jay Shidler, Robin Campaniano, Warren Haruki, Susan Yamada, Eddie Flores, Barry Taniguchi, Dr. Virginia Pressler and Dee Jay Mailer. If the past is any guide, the future graduates of the College will help ensure a bright future for Hawai‘i.

On behalf of everyone at Hawaii Business magazine, we congratulate Susan Eichor, Denis Isono, Angela Lee and Keith Sakamoto for joining the ranks of the Hall of Honor inductees, and for the work that they have done to make Hawai‘i a better place.

We also extend a very special mahalo to the staff of the College, who have worked so hard to create this special event.

Mahalo nui loa,

Bobby Senaha, publisher
Barbara J. Tanabe (EMBA 1983), Mistress of Ceremonies

With over 25 years of experience in communications, Tanabe has built a distinguished career that has brought her national recognition. She began her broadcast career in Seattle and was recognized by the Asian American Journalists Association for breaking the color and gender barriers in broadcast news.

She was among the first group of reporters listed among the top pioneer journalists in the U.S. in the Newseum, a private museum in Washington, D.C. In 1971, she received an Emmy Award for her documentary on the internment of Japanese Americans during World War II. In 1974, Tanabe became anchor and business correspondent with KHON-TV in Honolulu.

In 1987, she joined Hill & Knowlton, Hawai’i’s oldest and largest public relations firm. She was named president in 1992 and chief executive officer the following year, at which time she received the firm’s highest national award: The John W. Hill Award for Excellence.

Today, Tanabe is the owner and principal of Ho’akea Communications LLC, a public affairs company based in Honolulu.

Tanabe was inducted into the Shidler Hall of Honor in 1996.
Dee Jay Mailer joined Kamehameha Schools as chief executive officer in 2004. She has led the Schools in its mission to improve the capability and well-being of Hawaiians through education.

Today, Kamehameha Schools is the largest K-12 private school system in the State with campuses on Oʻahu, Maui and Hawaiʻi island. The system educates over 6,900 students and serves an additional 40,000 individuals through community outreach programs.

In addition to overseeing Kamehameha’s vast educational system, Mailer’s responsibility includes strengthening the endowment that funds educational programs, overseeing the stewardship of its lands, and supporting the practice of Hawaiian culture and language throughout the organization.

Previously, Mailer served as chief operating officer for the Global Fund to fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, a foundation that funds proposals to fight diseases in developing countries. She also spent 24 years working her way up in Hawaiʻi’s healthcare industry from being a nurse at Kapiʻolani Medical Center to serving as the CEO of Kaiser Permanente.

Mailer currently shares her time and expertise with numerous community organizations, including Assets School, Bishop Museum, ʻŌlelo Community Media, the Hawaiʻi State Early Learning Advisory Board, and the Pacific Health Research and Education Institute.

Born and raised in Hawaiʻi, Mailer is a 1970 Kamehameha Schools graduate. She received an Executive MBA and BA in nursing from the University of Hawaiʻi at Mānoa.
Susan Eichor is president and chief operating officer of aio, a family of businesses dedicated to living and promoting the unique values of Hawai‘i, its culture and its people. aio’s brands include businesses in media, sports, food and technology such as: Hawaii Business, Hawaii Home+Remodeling, Hawaii, Honolulu and Mana magazines; ESPN 1420 AM and NBC Sports Radio AM 1500; B. Hayman; Milan Marketplace; Obun Hawaii; Upspring Media; Hukilau Honolulu, Pagoda Restaurant, Punalu‘u Bake Shop; and Watermark Publishing.

Before joining aio, Eichor was part of the leadership team at Verizon Hawaii. She oversaw all phases of the company’s capital investment program, including the planning, engineering, project management and construction of the telecommunications network. She also led Verizon Hawaii’s customer operations team, whose responsibilities included installation and maintenance service statewide.

Eichor currently serves as the board chair for the aio Foundation, whose mission is to bring together like-minded companies and community organizations in support of academic and athletic programs for Hawai‘i’s youth. She also serves on the Shidler College of Business Advisory Council and the boards of Diamond Head Theatre and Lanakila Pacific. Eichor is an active member of the U.S.-Japan Council and the Association of Public Television Stations.

Eichor was born and raised in Honolulu and graduated from McKinley High School. She attended Stanford University, where she earned a BS degree in industrial engineering. In 1990, she earned an MBA from the Shidler College of Business at the University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa. Eichor and her husband, Rick, reside in Honolulu with their Jack Russell terriers, Bandit and Penny.
Denis K. Isono is the executive vice president and chief financial officer of Central Pacific Bank (CPB), the fourth largest bank in the state of Hawai’i. In this capacity, Isono is responsible for planning, developing, and strategizing the company’s financial functions and performance. As part of the bank’s Executive Committee, Isono also participates in the development, implementation, and monitoring of the company’s strategic plans and programs, including forecasting and monitoring of the corresponding balance sheet and financial projections.

Isono has more than 30 years of experience in the financial and accounting industries. Prior to joining CPB in 2002, he was with Bank of Hawaii where he served as controller, chief accounting officer, and executive vice president. He also worked at Ernst & Young’s Honolulu Office.

Isono is a certified public accountant, certified internal auditor, certified management accountant, and chartered bank auditor.

Active in various community organizations, Isono currently serves on the boards of Mid Pacific Institute, University of Hawai’i ‘Ahahui Koa Ånuenue and Friends of the UH Cancer Center; and is an executive committee member of the Sheraton Hawaii Bowl, Diamond Head Classic and the Japan-American Society of Hawaii.

Isono received a BBA from the Shidler College of Business at the University of Hawai’i at Mānoa. He also graduated from the Executive Management Program at Stanford University and the Advance Management Program at the University of Hawai’i.
Angela Y. Lee joined the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University as the Mechthild Esser Nemmers Professor of Marketing in 1995.

Her research focuses on consumer motivation and affect, cross-cultural consumer psychology, and nonconscious influences of memory on judgment and choice. Her publications have appeared in major marketing and psychology journals including The Journal of Consumer Research, Journal of Consumer Psychology, Journal of Marketing Research and Psychological Science.

Lee was the recipient of the 2006 Stanley Reiter Best Paper Award for her research on self-regulation and persuasion, and the 2002 Otto Klineberg Award for the best paper on international and intercultural relations. She currently serves on the editorial boards of the Journal of Consumer Research, Journal of Marketing Research, Journal of Consumer Psychology, and the International Journal of Internet Marketing and Advertising. Lee is the president of the Association of Consumer Research and a board member of the American Marketing Association.

At Kellogg, Lee serves as the faculty advisor of the Global Initiatives in Management for China, Japan and South Africa.

Prior to becoming an academic, Lee worked as a fundraising consultant for several nonprofit organizations in Hong Kong and Toronto.

She received her BBA in marketing and travel industry management from the Shidler College of Business at the University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa, an MPhil in economics from the University of Hong Kong, and a PhD in marketing from the University of Toronto.
Keith Sakamoto is the president & CEO of Hawaiian Host, Inc., the first and largest producer of macadamia nut chocolates in Hawai‘i. Since joining Hawaiian Host in 1994, Sakamoto has served in various senior positions throughout the company and was promoted to president and CEO in 2011.

With years of experience in finance, management, sales and marketing, Sakamoto helped expand Hawaiian Host’s online marketing, international markets, packaging and products, including a premium line of macadamia nut candies. He is active in the Hawaii Food Manufacturers Association and in the U.S. candy industry through the National Confectioners Association and the Western Candy Conference.

Prior to joining Hawaiian Host, Sakamoto was vice president & CFO of Honolulu-based Pacific Marine. His past experiences also include working for AT&T in New York and New Jersey and for Coopers & Lybrand in Honolulu. He earned his CPA certification while in Hawai‘i and CFA certification while in New York. Sakamoto currently serves on the boards of the YMCA of Honolulu and the Hawaii Youth Symphony. He also serves as a lector (scripture reader) at Star of the Sea Church.

Born and raised in Honolulu, Sakamoto attended Roosevelt High School and earned his BBA degree from the Shidler College of Business at the University Hawai‘i at Mānoa. He later received his MBA degree from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. He is blessed with a wonderful family life and enjoys spending time with his wife Lisa and sons Jeffrey and John.
Mahalo to the sponsors of the 2013 Hall of Honor Awards. Funds raised tonight will benefit the Shidler College of Business Alumni Association.
